California agriculture is going to be forced to the conclusion that it means as little to "Big Business" as does labor if the San Francisco chamber of commerce persists in holding out for tariff regulations which can be literally translated into "free trade." Agriculture, however, must not be surprised at the chamber's attitude, for that worthy body has evidently weighed the value of domestic agriculture against the benefits to be derived from increased imports and found agriculture on the light side of the scales.

The sooner the farmer realizes that he draws no more water than does labor when cold, hard dollars are at stake, the sooner he is going to team up with labor and find out why the h— he isn't getting a fair break.

I'd like to call your attention to the fact that if you don't register for and vote at the general election this fall, it will be necessary to go through that procedure in order to vote at any subsequent local elections. Better tend to it now while you have lots of time on your hands.

Mr. Anti-Gun Alco, of whom I have had a few bitter words to say in the past few weeks, has a tough hazard to hurdle in the American Legion which has declared itself against the Alco anti-pistol law. The Legionnaires have reasons other than those of the writer for not wanting the ordinary man disarmed: they would not have Mr. Average man become unfamiliar with firearms for the sake of the country's defense; I don't want to see him disarmed for the sake of his own defense. Regardless of the difference of opinion—not that I would not rise to the country's defense in case of actual invasion—the Legion draws considerable water, and I don't care how Mr. Alco is defeated so long as he is defeated.

The Alco proposal is naught but the forerunner of legislation which would completely disarm the American citizen, whose much-touted constitution gives him the right to "own and bear arms." Soon we would be deprived of our target rifles, sporting rifles, and shotguns as well as pistols, and then we shooters would be an unhappy minority indeed.

Down with the Alco proposal, say I—and I believe I can convince any organization or individual of its non-workability and unfairness if but given the chance.

To Be Held Here

SIXTY ENJOY
LOCAL CLUB'S
LUNCHEON

Continuing a plan adopted last season the Country Woman's club opened its year's activities Monday with a 1 o'clock luncheon at Community hall.

Over 60 members, prospective members and guests enjoyed the delicious luncheon which was served by the Women's Service club, of which Mrs. E. Russell Kennedy is president.

The officers, guest speaker and musicians were seated at a long table covered with a cloth of delicate peach color, a center basket of flowers flanked with blue candles in pink holders.

Through the courtesy of Mrs. J. C. Ainsley, one of the program committee of the day, lovely corsages were at each of the places at this table.

The remainder of the company was seated at quartet tables, covered with cloths in pastel shades and centered with small baskets of pom-pom dahlias and other small fall flowers.

Large dahlias, combined with the pom-poms, most of them from the Ainsley gardens, were arranged in artistic profusion about the room.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, Mrs. Chauncey H. Whitman, the new president, graciously welcomed members and guests, and introduced Mrs. D. M. Burke of Mountain View, president of the Santa Clara County Federation of Women's Clubs, who complimented the club on its success, and expressed her pleasure in visiting here, and then extended an urgent invitation to the members to attend the first federation meeting Sept. 28 at Santa Clara, with the three federated clubs of that city as hostesses, and a joint meeting with the San Mateo federation at Mountain View Oct. 26, when the state president, Miss Josephine Seaman will be the speaker.

Mrs. Whitman then presented the other members of the board of directors, Mrs. Freeman Howes, vice president; Mrs. Louis Shelley, secretary; Miss Jessie Lewis, treasurer, and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson, director at large.

Mrs. L. J. Carboni, chairman for the afternoon, introduced Mrs. Herbert Geach, soloist, and her accompanist, Mrs. E. B. Tainter, both of San Jose. Mrs. Geach, whose music the club has enjoyed upon other occasions, sang two groups, one following the speaker. She had chosen as her numbers, "Twilight Serenade," Cadman; "Sweetheart of Mine," "Love Came Calling," and "Bow! of Roses."

The program committee, of which Miss Jessie Lewis was the third member, were very fortunate in securing Mrs. Maude Empey, state president of the Business and Pro-

Mrs. Empey opened her talk with a brief account of the formation of her organization, which reversed the usual order by organizing from the top down. She outlined very clearly the purpose of federation and the advantages derived from it, mentioning the mental stimulus, the study of common problems and the interchange of ideas and plans for their solution, and the weight and influence of united efforts and forces.

A short intermission was followed by a brief business meeting of members, called principally to present the names of 17 applicants for admission to the club, to be voted upon at the meeting of

PRUNE GROWERS DEMAND
RESIGNATION OF CONTROL
BOARD AT BITTER MEETING

A somewhat wild and fantastic meeting of prune growers, packers, and free-lance entertainers was held Tuesday night in the auditorium and on the lawns of Campbell grammar school. After hours of bickering and heckling between the rival factions, the meeting culminated with the following resolutions:

1. Demanding resignations of the "self-appointed" control board of the industry's marketing agreement and substitution by election of "just growers who have not been leaders in the California Prune Pool or the California Prune and Apricot Growers association."

2. Demanding that the present marketing agreement be terminated immediately and a "growers' plan" be substituted for it.

Federal representative for the marketing agreement, W. E. Packard, invited guest and crusader for "intelligent consideration," was frustrated in his attempts to explain the relationship of the prune industry to the world-wide economic problem by incessant shouting and obtuse sarcasm from the floor. Packard pointed out that the market agreement was an honest effort on the part of the government to re-establish the purchasing power of the farmer, a most effective factor in national recovery.

The Teresi brothers, continually trying to usurp the throne of Chairman O. B. Couk, asked that Packard be taken off the air in order that other speakers, speakers who they personally desired to hear, be given a chance.

The main point of dissension, a bit disshevelled and scarcely recognisable from association with the mass of inconsequential prattle, seemed to be demand for complete resignation of the control board on grounds of violation of the reserve tonnage agreement. Giles Bradley of Morgan Hill maintained that the control board had held to the 28 per cent reserve tonnage while official estimates showed that the crop called only for 10 per cent reserve. Lloyd Hollingren of Healdsburg pointed out that carry-over tonnage at the beginning of each season always served to depress prices and under such conditions the reserve tonnage idea could not possibly be a sane one, while Mrs. M. E. Williams of Santa Rosa, asserting that prune standardization is under monopolistic and arbitrary control of the "packer-controlled dried fruit association," insisted that growers should unite and control the marketing of their own fruit. J. Gomez of Hollister stated that San Benito growers "were for getting us 100 per cent of our money instead of 72 per cent."

Packard, in reply to the above accusations and criticism, insisted that the A.A.A. welcomed all constructive suggestions whereby the grower might benefit, but that unrestricted sale at the beginning of the season would wreck the price level and that the A.A.A. was in a position to get more for the 28 per cent reserve tonnage than the grower could possibly get independently—that the agreement saw to it that the effects of each season's carry-over were not necessarily suffered by the grower. He then launched into a statistical citation of a rise in the price level over the last two years and was hooted from the stage when he asserted that the packer suffered more from the present agreement than any agreement in history, etc., etc. His economic analyses continued to fall on deaf ears.

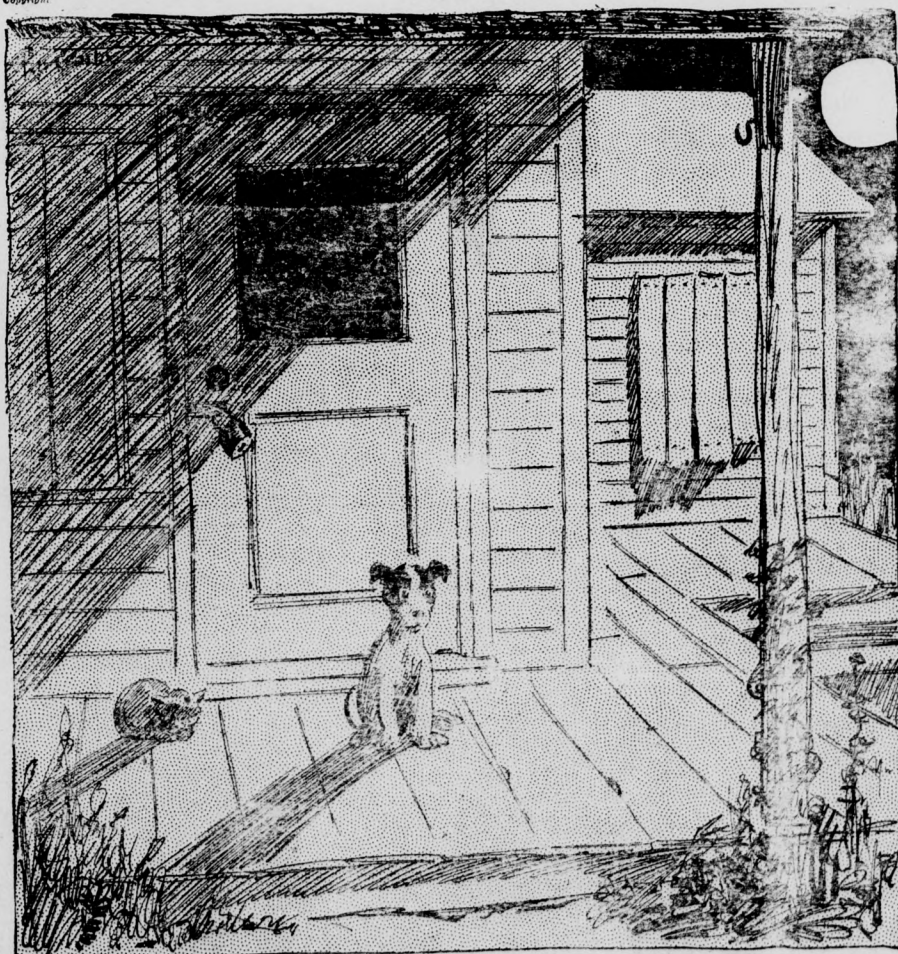

In answer to Packard's statistics, J. P. Thomas, chairman of the movement here, declared that the low price level of 1931 was due to the Harlan-Rosenberg marketing war of that year, not to any mistake of the growers.

The climax was reached when S. N. Hedegard, local rancher who in attempting to inoculate the meeting with a moment of reason, suggested that "we shouldn't drop this agreement until we have another to replace it," and was shouted from the stage.

Mrs. Tom Hayes is spending the month with her son, Carl Ruddle of Tucson, Ariz.

"Should Auld Acquaintance be Forgot?"

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

California, perhaps more than any other state in the nation, is dependent on tariff protection for a successful agriculture, due to the fact that its crops come into direct competition with similar crops from foreign countries with much lower living standards and a "cheap labor" supply.

Regardless of all the nicely-phrased arguments of economists and free trade theorists, California faces the inescapable fact that if tariff barriers are removed California farmers and California labor will both suffer. Lower income and living conditions, far below American standards, will be the inevitable result.

And yet, in face of these facts, the San Francisco chamber of commerce, representing a great metropolitan area which has come to greatness largely as a result of its back-country, has placed itself in the unfortunate and illogical position of supporting the present movement to destroy—or at least greatly reduce—the present tariff protection for California crops.

Most serious is the fact that the tariff question, under present conditions, can be decided without congressional approval, and without a proper hearing being accorded the farming industry. Final authority in the tariff issue rests, today, with the President and the tariff commission—a dangerous situation at best, and one made doubly dangerous when organizations like the San Francisco chamber of commerce come out in espousal of what amounts to free trade.

The Agricultural Council of California, representing the state's major farm cooperatives and farm commodity organizations, has made vigorous protest to the San Francisco chamber against its unsound and inconsistent position in opposing present tariff restrictions and, at the same time, favoring a subsidy for American ships to increase the trade passing through its port.

In its formal protest the agricultural council, embracing in its membership more than 50 per cent of all California farmers, says:

"Attention has been directed to the great inconsistency of your organization in supporting what amounts to foreign free trade in agricultural products and yet, at the same time, with equal vigor, supporting a subsidy for American ships."

"Do you not see the gross unfairness of such a position to agriculture, one of the main supports in making San Francisco the great city she is?"

"A tremendous share of the business done in your city is due to the agricultural production of your back-country which is handled by your merchants, processed by your factories, and shipped from your shores, and also to the wealth brought into the state from

BURLESQUE ENTERTAINS REBEKAHS

Burlesquing of the Rebekah initiation ceremony formed a part of the entertainment last night when members of the local lodge gathered to observe the 83rd anniversary of the founding of the order. Charles L. Snyder gave an interesting resume of Rebekah activity since the order's inception in 1851.

Following the program old fashioned dancing was enjoyed to music furnished by the grange orchestra, and light refreshments were served.

The committee in charge of the evening included Josephine LaBarbara, Mr. and Mrs. Al Bulmore, Mr. and Mrs. James Burns, Mr. and Mrs. William Ohlen and Walter Smily.

eastern shipments and which is spent many times over in San Francisco.

"Why should you desire to stifle the very industry which puts business in the hands of your people?"

"Consistency at least should put you on the same side of both issues. We do not object to your position with reference to ship subsidy, but we do think you should reverse the paradoxical position you now hold and join California farmers in support of tariff, which will keep at least a reasonable share of the American market for domestic producers."

"May we not hear soon of a change in your position with reference to foreign trade duties?"

It is to be hoped that the San Francisco chamber of commerce, on more mature consideration, will heed the appeal of the back country which has created San Francisco and made it strong.

It is to be hoped that American standards of living may be maintained; that California wage scales shall be maintained, and that California's great farming industry—the mainstay of both rural and urban life—shall be granted the support to which it is rightfully entitled.

Campbell Scouts To Attend Camporee At 'Farm'

Local Boy Scouts will attend the county "Camporee" at Stanford Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 22 and 23, according to Scoutmaster J. H. Bennett, to whom inquiries revealed the fact that scouts need not participate in the competitions in order to attend.

The scene of the week-end camp will be the Stanford sunken baseball diamond. Former President Hoover will present Eagle badges to six of the attending scouts from this county.

Last week a group of local scouts attended camp at the coast under the leadership of Rev. Bennett and assistant, Norman McVey.

Kiwanis Notes

Kiwanians and their ladies gathered at Community hall last night for an enjoyable dinner and program.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. T. W. McQuarrie, president of San Jose State college, who spoke on "Leadership."

He said leadership may be by ignorance, example, fear or service, and expressed the belief that the gang which often is heard from the most is from the "lunatic fringe" who haven't ability to lead and who would never be heard from unless they made a lot of noise.

The season's first meeting of the Women's Service club was held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ray Fish on North Second street. Mrs. Archie Keesling, Mrs. Lydia Brooks and Miss Muriel Carson were co-hostesses, and Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, president of the group, presided.

A marriage which has been kept secret since Dec. 11, 1933 is that of Miss Mary Feathers to Paul Jones. The wedding took place in Carson City, Nev. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will reside in Campbell where the former is associated with his brother Fred in the Jones service station.

Marketing Pact To Be Explained By Committee

San Francisco, Sept. 19.—At a meeting of the growers' committee held here today, many of the questions involving misunderstandings on the part of some prune growers throughout the state over the operation of the new industry marketing agreement were discussed.

After a careful review of the present market situation, it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that the agreement already had demonstrated its effectiveness in the reestablishment of the domestic prune market on a more stable basis than would have been possible otherwise. The committee also pointed out that the continued effectiveness of the agreement and improved market conditions depended upon the proper understanding and support of the agreement by all prune producers of the state.

Acting on this conclusion a committee was appointed to assist in the development of an educational campaign for the purpose of bringing to the growers of the state a real understanding of the intent and purposes of the industry agreement.

The committee consists of Douglas Chisholm, Windsor;

Nick Nelson, Los Gatos; Gene Sharp, Hollister, and Karl Schnabel, Yuba City. FOR RENT or sale—Five rm home. Bx. 574 Sunnyside ave. Reas. Phone Bal. 7567.

Negotiating for Trade Pacts

Important tariff developments during the past two weeks include the announcement by the department of state of the intention to negotiate trading agreements with Haiti, Brazil, and Belgium, according to information received by T. C. Tucker, chairman of the Growers Tariff league from its Washington correspondent.

The Washington correspondent of the league declares that the announcement throws some further light upon the question as to what constitutes the "study period" and the "negotiation period." Late in August, Acting Secretary of State Phillips stated that no other pact besides the Cuban was actually under negotiation, but others were in a so-called "study period."

It seems now, in view of the unofficial understanding that the Brazil agreement is rather well along, that the tendency would be to prolong the official study period and shorten the negotiation period.

Apparently under the study period, the first effort is the selection of a country with which negotiations appear possible and profitable; the second is an examination of our export situation to determine just what we want of a foreign country; and the third involves investigation of the import situation, and tentative assumption as to what we might give in return.

The Washington correspondent of the league states it can be said in general that at the end of the study period our view of what we want to get from a foreign country is much more definite and fixed than what we want to give.

Even though the study periods may seem to be progressing rapidly, it is possible that the negotiation time may be considerably prolonged.

Planning the Basket Picnic

SEASONED picnickers know, summer outings may be much or little work, depending upon judicious planning. Suppers served out-of-doors are almost universally enjoyed and should be arranged frequently. With good organization they mean little work and excellent meals. A supply of gayly colored waxed papers—paper plates, cups, spoons and napkins, should be kept in readiness on the pantry shelf at all times during the Summer and Fall. A large basket and several thermos bottles should also be part of the permanent equipment. The "emergency" or food supply shelf should be well stocked with Sandwich Spreads, Pickles, Olives, Relishes, Oven Baked Beans, Fruits, Cheeses, Canned Meats, and so on. With such foods at hand, planning a picnic will never be a serious matter. Have you ever taken a jar of mixed fresh fruits along to be served as a fruit cup at the beginning of the picnic meal? This is a discovery that is being proclaimed as ideal by picnickers. Served in a paper cup, the fruit seems exactly right as an appetizer. Oven Baked Beans, served cold, is another excellent picnic food that means no preparation at all. And ready-to-serve soup, heated and taken along in a thermos, is an excellent accompaniment to an otherwise cold meal. Here are a few picnic suggestions you will enjoy.

Fruit Cup	Corned Beef, Horseradish and Pickle Sandwiches*
Deviled Eggs*	Ham and Tomato Sandwiches
Cake	Stuffed Olives
Lemonade or Coffee	Fresh Fruit
Hot Cream of Mushroom Soup or Consommé (a thermos)
Sliced Ham Loaf* or Cold Cuts
Oven Baked Beans (served cold)	Sliced Tomatoes
Prepared Mustard	Pickles
Brown Bread and Butter Sandwiches
Cherry Pie (individual pies are nice)

(*) Indicates recipes given below.

Corned Beef, Horseradish and Pickle Sandwiches—Mince 1 can corned beef well and mix with 1½ tablespoons Evaporated Horseradish (soaked for 10 minutes in 2 tablespoons cold water), and 6 tablespoons Mayonnaise. For each sandwich use two slices of bread, and spread a thin layer of filling on each slice. On one slice place thin slices of Sweet Midget Gherkins and then top with the second slice of bread, filling sides together. This makes an excellent picnic sandwich.

Deviled Eggs—Shell 6 hard cooked eggs and cut in half lengthwise. Remove and mash the yolks. Moisten with Chili Sauce, Prepared Brown Mustard and a few drops of Worcestershire Sauce. Add salt, pepper, and a few drops of onion juice to season. Refill the egg whites with this mixture. Put together in pairs and wrap in waxed paper.

Sliced Ham Loaf—Have ground together twice, 1 lb. raw cured ham and ½ lb. fresh pork. Add 1 egg, ¾ cup milk, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce, a dash of pepper and 2 cups Rice Flakes. Pat into a loaf, place in a greased roaster and sprinkle with flour. Sear in hot oven (500° F.) until brown. Pour ½ cup water around loaf, cover and continue cooking in a moderate oven (375° F.) for 1 hour. Cool and cut in slices.

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Hedegard, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rees and Sanford Hedegard returned last week from a seven-weeks' tour of the middle west and east. Mrs. Rees, the former Esther Hedegard, left today with her husband for Los Angeles where they will make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Hubbel and sons Richard and Robert of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Denton of Paterson, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hubbel of Los Gatos, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Graham of Santa Cruz and Miss A. E. Denton recently honored Mrs. Effie Hubbel at a birthday picnic in DeLeavaga park at Santa Cruz.

Group No. 3 of the Congregational guild will entertain groups No. 1 and 2 in the church parlors Thursday afternoon, Sept. 27. All members and friends are invited.

The Campbell grammar school P. T. A. held its first meeting of the year yesterday afternoon in the school building. President Mrs. Blair presided.

THE TRUTH

ABOUT HAIR AND HAIR TREATMENTS

You may be one of millions who has wasted time, hope, money on "tonics" and treatments... Now Charles Nessler, inventor of the permanent wave, leading hair scientist, author of "Story of Hair", makes a simple but revolutionary discovery that ends BALDNESS • DANDRUFF • OILINESS • THINNING HAIR. In the past, tonics and treatments tried to stop hair from falling. That is as useless as trying to stop an animal from shedding! What you must do is make your scalp replace the hair that falls—in short, complete the hair growing cycle. It is on that scientific principle that Charles Nessler's Pro-Ker is based. 30,000 tests have proved that Pro-Ker produces results. Hair for hair, it makes the scalp replace falling hair with new hair. Enjoy your birthright—beautiful, lustrous hair. Send for Charles Nessler's revealing booklet. Better still, buy Pro-Ker at your druggist, or mail the coupon below.
